PROJECT SUMMARY

Introduction:

QMetric Group's Salesforce Tower, a stylish and design led fit out and refurbishment project, was delivered in 2020.

The works required strategic project management to deliver a bold design with real wow factor alongside practical office requirements.

As an insurance company, the client wanted to convey a modern and professional image while also offering employees a fun and engaging place to work.

The Challenges:

Of course, 2020 provided its own challenges such as supplier shutdowns as well as the health & safety implications of Covid-19.

We worked closely with the on-site security to ensure a health & safety conscious approach at all times, alongside professionally managed logistical elements.

The design incorporated a refurbished dining area, new games room and break out rooms, a refurbished office space, management suite and impressive lobby area - all in a timeframe of just 11 weeks.

The End Result:

We are immensely proud of the finished result, and so is our client.

The design balances bold prints and colours with minimal architectural elements and exposed ceilings to give a modern and industrial look.

From a practical point of view, all areas function extremely well for the client's business needs with all the necessary facilities and communication infrastructure in place and hidden from view.

"It's always exciting to see such a bold design taking shape and the finished article is nothing short of phenomenal"

Joe Hearne, Design Manager - Logic CP Ltd.
