PROJECT SUMMARY

Introduction:

Construction giants BAM Nuttall, approached us with a clear objective: to modernise the working areas of their Surrey based head office with a strong focus on mental health and wellbeing.

The scope of the design included open plan office areas, a boardroom, smaller meeting rooms and break out areas, a large conference & training room and even the restrooms.

Some of these areas required total refurbishment while others were simply upgraded with new furniture and glass partitions.

The Challenges:

To achieve the client objective of enhancing employee mental health and wellbeing, the design featured natural materials and vibrant colours to bring the outside in.

The varied sizes and styles of meeting rooms allowed us to change the design slightly for each to break up any corporate monotony.

We were also conscious to minimise any disruption to the client's business. We kept any disruptive work during office hours to a minimum and focused on one area at a time to allow business to continue as

The End Result:

The specification on this project was high - it's great to see companies investing in their workplace for the explicit benefit of their employees.

Logic CP were involved in all elements of this project, even down to furniture selection, enabling us to deliver from start to finish.

A particular favourite area of this project is the private office booths that we specified, procured and installed. These small working spaces allow staff space for private phone calls, 1-2-1 meetings and to have some quiet time if necessary

"A lot of thought has gone into making this workspace good for people as well as business"
