The Client of this fantastic property was looking to create a high end pool house changing facility that blended into its surroundings with high tech and design inspired features. Logic CP worked with the designer to ensure the building was compliant with building control and closed out the outstanding planning conditions, enabling the designer to introduce their design flair and provide a space fitting to the property.

Materials were specified from a number of European countries, with the majority of components sourced from Spain and Italy. These had to be ordered in time to meet the installation and completion deadlines. The chosen kitchen was on a long lead in and the specialist Sapele cladding had to be drawn, machined by our specialist joiner and pre finished, all before installation. The interaction and interface between trades had to be carefully planned and monitored.

The end result was a unique, stunning individual futuristic design, constructed and finished to an extremely high standard. The pool house blended into the woodland surroundings making a substantial design statement. To help reduce the environmental impact, the pool house was built to current insulation values and had a Sedum grass roof ensuring the envelope of the building was environmentally friendly.
